Bio

"There's a stream of light that runs through the future and back again/It penetrates the photographs I will make years from now and the ones I've made in the last days, in the last weeks and the last years/It ran through Laevo/Through Cylla, Soblu and Nexo/Trivel and Azu.

This light runs through time/My time/My history/And saturates my past/It shines back to a quiet street in the tiniest of Arkansas towns, to a street light just down the road and in sight of my bedroom window.

I would lay in bed staring at this lamp post/Leaves of summertime danced in front of it /Rain poured around it/The light glowed blue, and quiet/Worlds were born.

This light awakened my imagination/This was my first time to see light/To see beauty.
I was 9 years old."

Artist Statement

Mark Jackson has been a photographer for 30 years, always creating and making. In 2017, he began experimenting with his own approach to art and printmaking - "I realized I was onto something because the art I was making was like nothing I had seen before". Since the beginning of VELESERO, Mark has been working closely with galleries, designers and art collectors, and his work can be found across the world.
