

OUR ART OUR REGION OUR TIME

Opaline Coral

3.5 x 3.5 feet x 4 inches

Assemblage

$950

A creamy, white reef stirs up sun-soaked happiness and calm. Reefs are a perfect analogy to assemblage. The delicate individual coral organisms are more dramatic and impactful together. In the same way, I use odds and ends, shaping them into beautiful organic compositions.

Amy Terry

@gussyland

Bio

I have been a creative person as long as I can remember. That creativity has woven its way into all areas of my life including business, parenting, and faith. But its greatest outlet has always been the arts, and the career born from it has ranged wide, from mural and collage to hair and makeup. My current focus is exploring a passion for assemblage and narrative. After relocating from Minneapolis several years ago, Bentonville is now home with my husband, two children and two pups. I am thrilled to be part of the inspiring NWA arts community and have found my art evolving in new and exciting ways.

Artist Statement

Amy Terry's love of all things vintage, years of collecting unique items, and seeing the beauty in things headed to the landfill, fuels a compulsion to give life to these forgotten, once cherished items. This has led to an entire series of thoughtful assemblage over the last two years.

Her work draws parallels between the medium and coral reefs, nostalgia, and even play while exploring distinct, harmonious color stories.

These pieces intend to inspire discovery, reflection, and put a smile on every face.