Cut paper

Robin Starr

Bio

Robin Starr is a self-taught artist living in Fayetteville, Arkansas. While her focus is cutting paper with X-ACTO blades, she also creates pet portraits, makes metalwork jewelry, builds gardens, and works with local youth to write stories, study nature, and create community art. A naturalist and wanderer at heart, she feels most at home deep in the forest.

Artist Statement

On paper and in life, every move requires my full attention. I cut from a single sheet of paper with a #11 X-ACTO blade. I cut away the excess in order to bring a memory or feeling into the light. My paper cut works are defined by the darkness they are cut from and the light that replaces it. Inspired by the natural world, these images capture a fleeting moment and suspend it so that I can return to it again.
