Stacy Suvino

Bio

Seven years ago, I came across a book at a library about the street photography of the great Fred Herzog. I had never heard of him before that day, but with each turn of the page, I felt a connection. Since that encounter, I have captured moments both intentionally and by accident of daily life through a cinematic lens. When my feet hit the pavement, I don't really have an agenda. My work is found through a feeling, honest emotion. That has been the greatest gift for me to share as a storyteller.

Artist Statement

Stacy Suvino is a street photographer from Fayetteville, Arkansas. She chronicles her daily surroundings with none other than an iPhone 7 which led to a feature of her work by Apple. Led by curiosity, she captures the rhythmic arc of daily life through a cinematic lens. Using subjects from rodeos, to mundane objects, to blue collar workers, to city streets, to tell their stories. When she isn't out taking photographs, Stacy works in film and television as a Set Decoration buyer. She has worked on several projects including the Academy Award winning film, Minari, the Peabody Body Award winning show, Reservation Dogs, the Emmy Award winning show, The Marvelous Mrs. Maisel, and the upcoming show, The Lowdown, for FX on Hulu.
