Terry Dushan

Bio

Terry Dushan, a fine art photographer, has spent her life traveling the world. Her father and husband, both Air Force officers, had assignments in Europe and Asia, plus numerous ones in states across the country. Terry's father, an avid photographer in his free time and her mother, an accomplished oil painter, gave Terry a great appreciation for art in its many forms. Terry acquired her first camera in Germany and has spent the ensuing years capturing the landscapes, customs and peoples about her in each new location. Her work has won awards in competitions nationally and internationally. Currently, her works are in public and private collections, including the Arkansas Arts Council Permanent Collection, the Jewish Center in Omaha, Nebraska, and in three fine art galleries. Terry's works are known for their color, light and perspective.

Artist Statement

As a child, I was very fortunate to have parents who fostered in me a love for art in all its varied forms. A traditional fine art photographer for many years, I recently transitioned to creating strong abstract works from my original photographs, focusing especially on producing a sense of space and motion. My goal is to capture ordinary objects, then produce finished works that my viewer perceives as extraordinary. Textures and patterns, colors and light are critical elements.
