

A Lesson From The Ferret, 36 x 48 inches, Oil on canvas, $2,500.

Babette Blume

Artist Bio

Babette Blume is a fine artist who graduated with a degree in Art and Illustration from John Brown University. She is now pursuing a career as a freelance artist who takes on oil painting and mural commissions. Babette has been hired by Lightning Bolt Design, Old Soul Apothecary, and John Brown University to work on a number of mural projects as well as oil painting commissions. She also has experience selling original paintings and prints at art fairs and festivals.

In her free time, Babette enjoys baking for her friends, dabbling in photography, and watching Chinese dramas.

Artist Statement

I create art in an attempt to tread on paths often ignored and convey what words fail to.

Change is rippling through our world faster than it ever has before. Times like these are frightening. But there are always multiple ways to view an event. So perhaps this is an opportunity to invite a spirit of imagination and intuition into the world rather than glueing ourselves to rigid rules and mindsets we have followed for so long. So as part of my practice, I explored time. I questioned the language used to describe time in a recent art gallery and I how a change in our definition of time might change our physical world. With my art, I want to inspire myself and others to see if a release of traditional mindsets can inspire creation and intuition. What do I hope to create with my art? I am still seeking that answer. Truthfully, I believe that those who claim to have found an answer, have yet to find that answer. Thus is the limitation of language. And this is the potential that other forms of art, perhaps in combination with language, have. To create what language cannot.