Bio

Mark Jackson is a multidisciplinary artist living and working in Fayetteville, Arkansas. He is fascinated by photography, design, and sculpture. Jackson's art is generally focused around places, the human figure and curious objects. They walk a delicate line between the abstract and the real.

Jackson established VELESERO in 2016 to curate the work he created in the 2020s and 2030s. He conceives, art directs and photographs all his work. He also designs furniture and sculpture which has been exhibited across the United States and featured in events like the Venice Biennale.

His work is in select galleries and private collections, and he has worked with major brands and agencies around the globe.

Artist Statement

"I collect fragments and assemble them. Nothing is perfect, nor does it need to be. Perfection is for the weak. I make what I make. What strikes curiosity at the time.

Sometimes there's an idea to communicate. Most of the time it's driven by the desire to make something I want to look at. And hopefully those things hinge on beauty, truth or love."
