Bio

Stacy Suvino is a street photographer from Fayetteville, Arkansas. She chronicles her daily surroundings with none other than an iPhone 7 which led to a feature of her work this year by Apple. Led by curiosity, she captures the rhythmic arc of daily life through a cinematic lens. Focusing on subjects from rodeos, to mundane objects to blue collars workers to city streets to tell their stories. When she isn't out photographing, Stacy works in film and television as a Set Decoration Buyer. She has worked on several projects including the Academy Award winning film "Minari", the Peabody Award winning show "Reservation Dogs" and the Emmy Award winning show "The Marvelous Mrs. Maisel".

Artist Statement

Six years ago, I came across a book at the library about the street photography of the great Fred Herzog. I had never heard of him before that day, but with each page turn, I felt a connection. Since that encounter, I have captured moments both intentionally and by accident of daily life through a cinematic lens. When my feet hit the pavement I don't really have an agenda...my work is found through a feeling, honest emotion. That that has been the greatest gift for me to share as a storyteller
