Artist Statement

During COVID, without outside expectations, I experienced a renewed freedom of expression. I found myself reverting back to my childhood love of taking scribbles and creating form and beauty from them. However, this process has matured to what I now call “Tohu vavohu,” which is Hebrew for chaos. By using watercolor pigments, water, salt, alcohol, blown air and other natural elements, I create beauty and order out of the “Tohu vavohu.” Making beauty out of chaos.

I feel myself painting from the inside-out, being filled with a sense of joy and freedom, much like I did as a child. Making beauty out of chaos.
