Bio

Sky Maggiore (they/them, b. 1992) is a visual artist from Upstate New York who attended Pratt Munson William Proctor and Purchase College of Art + Design for undergraduate studies. Sky currently studies at the University of Arkansas as a Graduate Assistant and Fellow, and is a seasonal instructor in Photography at AGBU Camp Nubar in Delancey, NY.

Artist Statement

At the root of my practice, I contemplate what it means to be a non-binary trans person who was raised in a rural conservative valley. This contemplation comes with both heartache and revelation. It means coming to terms with the reality of the systems and spaces that I'm expected to assimilate to were not built to accommodate who I am. My work critiques these systems through imagery, installation and lens based media. It questions binary conceptions through my own personal lens alongside those who share similar sentiments. As a photographer formerly only using traditional black and white methods, graduate school has driven me to contemplate my tools of choice and consider myself as not just a photographer but a visual artist.
