Bio

I currently live in Fayetteville. My childhood was spent in northern Arizona after my family moved from Wisconsin. For quick-study painting, I prefer a limited palette of watercolors and small-size papers. I feel these restrictions help to focus on just the fundamentals. For studio painting, I switch up to larger canvas and acrylics. The colors and textures available are so exciting and the larger canvas is great for expressive brushwork.

My work has been included in several exhibits at Spiva Art Center in Joplin, MO and the Art Center of the Ozarks in Springdale, AR. My work was also featured in a solo show at Art Central in Carthage, MO.

Artist Statement

Nature is always my favorite subject. I enjoy plein air painting with a simple watercolor palette and quick studies. The challenge is to break down the patterns, shapes and colors into a more minimalist scene. I'm most satisfied when I achieve an easy, care-free feel to the finished work.
